GRADE CROSSING
ELIMINATION IS ASKED ON ROAD

Government Engineers Take
Plans For Road to Mandan
Up With N. P.

SLIGHT DELAY CAUSED

Government Adopts Rule Requiring Abolition of Grade
Crossings on New Roads

Government engineers, passing on plans for the roadway to be built from the west end of the new vehicular bridge across the Missouri river, temporarily caused a hitch in plans by asking that arrangements be made for elimination of a railroad grade crossing on the road. W. H. Robinson, state engineer, who has returned from Minneapolis where he was called in conference with engineers of the Bureau of Good Roads, said that government engineers called in engineers for the Northern Pacific railroad, who did not give a decision but did not offer objection to the proposal to build a viaduct over the track.

Delay was caused in approving plans for the road from the bridge to Mandan on this account, the engineer said. They had, however, approved the plans with slight modifications and it is expected that as soon as arrangements are completed for the building of the viaduct they will give authority to begin work on the road to Mandan. The government road engineers have adopted a rule that they will not approve expenditure of government money to aid the building of a primary highway which includes a grade crossing of a railroad, unless the crossing is of minor consequence. The road from the west end of the bridge to Mandan would cross the main line of the Northern Pacific railroad.

This rule regarding grade crossings prevents consideration of any east end of the bridge, than the route chosen by the highway commission, Mr. Robinson said. This road provides for an underpass of Northern Pacific tracks on lower Main street, the road to be on the south side of the railroad from the underpass to the bridge. Because of the agreement reached between the highway commission and commissioners of Morton county for the building of a road on the west side of the river the government has approved an $80,000 estimate on the bridge, which has been held up, the engineer said.

ROAD BUILDING IS STIMULATED

Sharp Decline in Prices Results
In Increase

A sharp decline in prices has stimulated highway building to an unusual degree in North Dakota recently, according to W. H. Robinson, state engineer. Requests for surveys of proposed federal aid projects have been so numerous in the last few weeks that the highway commission engineers will be unable to prepare plans for all road work desired, it was said by Mr. Robinson.

The first road contracts let this spring were taken by contractors at prices so much below expectations that much road work which has been held up will now be done this year, Mr. Robinson said. Among the recent requests for counties for surveys are: Walsh county, 45 miles; Cavalier, 12 miles; McHenry, 15 miles; Steele, nine miles. Some of the engineering work has been completed.

CONNECTION OF ROADS PLANNED

Williston, N. D., June 1.—Federal and state engineers, meeting here last week, made final arrangements for connecting at the North Dakota line the east and west highways between Williston and Bismarck, Mont. They went over the route surveyed from Williston west to the Montana line and decided upon the western terminus of this line as the place where the work of the two states should join.

The route from Williston to the Montana line is a federal aid project for which contracts were let last week and which is to be completed this year. Work on the Montana side, it is understood, is also planned to be begun soon.

TEACHER SUE

Minot, N. D., June 1.—Papers have been served in a $5,000 damage suit of John C. Blair, by Ernest Blair, his guardian, against Lewis Harter, a teacher in the Minot city schools, charging assault and battery.

The complaint alleges that on May 12, 1922, the defendant assaulted the plaintiff, a 16-year-old lad, by striking and beating him in and upon and about the face and body and knocking him down and kicking him, treating him in a cruel and excessive manner and form, and with malice and oppression on the part of the defendant. Funke, Campbell & Elde are the attorneys for the plaintiff.

MARY'S DIVORCE
IS HELD O. K.

Nevada Supreme Court Quashes
Service of Summons

Carson, Nev., June 1.—Mary Pickford's divorce from Owen Moore, was sustained when the Nevada supreme court affirmed the order of District Judge Frank P. Langan, quashing service of summons in the action brought by Attorney General Fowler to set aside the decree granted the movie star.

Legal action was started shortly after the Moore-Pickford divorce in which Attorney General Fowler charged that the writ of separation had been obtained by the screen stars through fraudulent means and he sought to have the decree set aside. When the matter came before Judge Langan in district court he ruled the decree legal and the matter was then taken to the Nevada supreme court by the attorney general. The supreme court ruling legalizes the divorce proceedings as well as the subsequent marriage of Miss Pickford and Douglas Fairbanks.

MARY "VERY HAPPY."
San Francisco, June 1.—"I am very, very happy; more happy than I can express," said Mary Pickford, when informed of the decision of the Nevada supreme court upholding her divorce from Owen Moore, according to her counsel, Gavin McNab, who telephoned the news to her in Los Angeles.

GOES TO MINNEAPOLIS.
Attorney General Sveinbjorn Johnson went to Minneapolis today to consult with engineers employed by the state in the Minnesota-North Dakota drainage case on the time and manner of taking additional testimony to be taken for presentation to the supreme court.

FREIGHT RATES
ARE DISCUSSED
IN CONFERENCE

Meeting Called by Farm Bureau
Is Held in Fargo, With Many Present

Fargo, June 1.—Representatives of various civic, state and commercial bodies of North Dakota were here today for a meeting to discuss railroad rates, called by the state farm bureau federation.

C. B. Hutchings, of Chicago, traffic manager of the National Farm Bureau, told the meeting that in general the best way to work for lower rates is to properly equip the state railroad commissions with money and authority to carry on the work.

Among those present were H. P. Smith, of Thompson, president of the state implement dealers' association; V. P. Cadieux, of Jamestown, North Dakota Shipping Service; P. J. Cahill, Wilton, lignite industries; V. E. Smart, Bismarck, traffic expert of the railroad commission; R. P. Flint, state dairy commissioner; U. L. Burdick, former lieutenant governor, was chairman.

The North Dakota railroad commission is planning action to secure relief from an injunction which now prevents it from interfering with intrastate rates, it was brought out in a rate meeting of various state bodies, called by the commission.

The recent reduction approximating 10 percent granted by the I. C. C. will not affect intrastate rates, C. B. Hutchings, traffic manager of the National Farm Bureau, told his hearers. V. E. Smart, traffic expert of the state commission, then explained that the commission is considering action to have the injunction removed so that the commission will have authority to regulate intrastate rates.

The proposed action of the commission would be to rescind its former orders denying the railroad rates increases, which were ordered by the Interstate Commerce Commission. It was announced about two weeks ago by Chairman McMillan that this action was considered, but no definite steps have been taken.

Damage in Washington was estimated at from $1,000,000 to $2,000,000. At least 25 homes in and near Cedar Falls, Wash., have been razed by fire. A special trainload of provisions and fire-fighting apparatus was held ready to be rushed to Cedar Falls and other points if necessary to aid refugees. M'CUMBER WON'T

MAKE EXTENSIVE

Senator Says That Duties in Washington Prevent His Entrance Into Long Campaign

TO DEPEND UPON FRIENDS

Senator Porter J. McCumber will not be able to spend much, if any, time in North Dakota in his primary campaign. In a letter sent to friends from Washington Senator McCumber states that he must, therefore, depend upon his friends during the campaign.

When several senators began to leave Congress about three weeks ago to go back and prepare for their campaigns Senator McCumber "lectured" the senate, declaring that the members should stay on the job.

In his letter Senator McCumber says:

"I have submitted my candidacy for reelection to the Senate of the United States to the voters of the State of North Dakota. "Owing to the fact that as chairman of the Committee on Finance I shall have charge in the Senate of the Tariff Bill and the Soldiers' Compensation Bill until they are enacted into laws, it will be impossible for me to spend much, if any, time in my primary campaign. I am, therefore, compelled to rely upon my friends to do what they can for me while I am performing the duties imposed upon me in the Senate."

"I feel that the committee positions which I hold are of immense value to the State of North Dakota and, in fact, to the agricultural and business interests of the entire Northwest, and that if I am reelected to the United States Senate for another term I can accomplish more for the State than it would be possible for any new man to accomplish who could scarcely hope even to secure assignments on such important committees, much less to reach the chairmanship or commanding position thereon. As all effective work must reach into the voting precincts of every county, some 2,200 in number, my dependence upon the efforts of my friends is most apparent."

"I have labored diligently to serve the people of my State during all the years I have been in the Senate, and, if reelected, I shall continue my efforts along this line."

WOULD EXTEND SUPREME COURT JUDGES' TERMS

M. W. Duffy Urges Constitutional Amendment to Make Terms Ten Years

ASKS FOR PETITIONS

Signatures to petitions to amend the state constitution by providing terms of judges of the supreme court shall be elected for ten years instead of six and railroad commissioners elected for terms of six years instead of two are asked by Maurice W. Duffy, deputy Secretary of State, in a circular sent to many friends in the state.

Mr. Duffy in his letter says: "At the last session of the legislature a proposed constitutional amendment (House Bill No. 186) making the terms of supreme court judges ten years, subject to recall, was introduced. The judge elected in 1922 receiving the highest vote, to serve for ten years, the next highest for eight years and the other for six years.

"This measure passed the House but was killed in the senate, the rule being that any bill passed by one house should be killed in the other. "I believe this measure is meritorious and that its enactment will do away with the present 'free-for-all' that we have every six years.

"The term of railroad commissioners should be six years, or being elected every two years. Their work is technical, experience, highly desirable, and a six year term should go far towards increasing efficiency.

"Would you consider it advisable to have initiated constitutional amendments embodying the above changes, the committee for the petitioners to be non-partisan or bi-partisan or tri-factional or whatever may be the proper designation.

"Action if taken should be soon as the petitions must be filed not later than July 8th."

SPECIAL RATES FOR IRRIGATION MEETING HERE

Railroad Commissioners Bulletin Also Details Methods for Obtaining Rate Adjustments

The railroad commission's weekly bulletin, issued today, calls attention to the North Dakota Telephone Association meeting in Mandan on June 6, 7 and 8 and the Irrigation Congress in Bismarck on June 7 and 8. Special rates are granted for persons attending the Irrigation Congress and persons who come to the telephone conference and also to the Irrigation Congress may also obtain the rate.

A notice to shippers issued by the commission says:

Inasmuch as many shippers in North Dakota may have found it difficult to secure adjustment of claims originally filed against the express companies operating in North Dakota prior to their having been taken over by the American Railway Express Company, we quote the following from Bulletin No. 59 issued May 20, 1922 by J. E. Benton, General Solicitor of the National Association of Railway and Utilities Commissioners:

"I now call your attention to the decision of the Supreme Court of Appeals of Virginia in the case of American Railway Express Company vs. Downing (25 Virginia Appeals, page 187). In that case, the court held that the transfer of assets of the Adams Express Co. to the American Railway Express Co. in consideration of stock issue was not a transfer for value and that the American Railway Express Co. took such assets with notice of the claims of creditors and subject to such claims. The court also applied the trust obligation theory of corporate assets and held that on this ground likewise, the creditors might follow the assets of the Adams Express Co. in the hands of the American Railway Express Co.

You will observe that the court sanctioned a suit direct by a creditor of the Adams Express Co. against the American Railway Express Co. It seems to the commission that the decision is of great importance in all cases where claim is not barred by the statute of Limitations. It might be well to recall also that the I. C. C. has held that the requirement of the express companies that a suit to be valid must be filed within two years and one day was an unreasonable regulation." (See National Industrial Traffic League v. American Railway Express Co. 53 I. C. C. 304.)

HERE'S PEEP BEHIND THE SCENES WHILE BIG ELKS MINSTREL FROLIC IS REHEARSING

There was a full rehearsal of the big Elks' minstrel frolic at the Auditorium last night. It may be telling secrets to take you back before the curtain goes up Friday night for the big melange of melody and song, comedy and dancing, sentiment and foolishness, but a peep or two is bound to make you keen to enjoy it all the more, so here goes.

The first scene must be for the ladies. Here is the inside of the Elks club, with a whole bunk of Elks lounging around the clubroom while Clint Draper and Alex Rosen are trying to list parts for a big minstrel show. During the scene are telephone rings, and the ladies have a chance to find out just why it is so difficult to get a man on the phone at the club when you just know he is there.

There are thirty, forty, maybe seventy-five good fellows in this scene. There's Joe Bellanger showing the boys how he would do a jig for the big minstrel show, Henry Duemeland performing on the harmonica, George Ross singing a nut song called "Which Hazel," and a lot of others. Joe Kelly was willing to sing a song for the director, but of course, it had to be an Irish song—"Stand Up and Sing For Your Fadder."

In this scene is introduced a new per with Clint Draper in a dancing and singing act; Bob Webb and Henry Duemeland in an awful argument; a dozen lively steppers in a dance; and an old man's dancing act that brought cheers at the rehearsal from the rest of the cast.

The second part of the big show, scene VIII, introduced Scott Cameron, an interloper and Clint Draper as director. There's Jim Blunt, Jim Taylor, Bob Simpson, W. J. Higgins, Bob Webb, Rudy Patzman, Tom McNeese and Al Rosen as the fun makers, with Henry Halverson, H. H. Ferner, Frank Gale, Roland Gross and George Humphreys as soloists, and a chorus of some 50 voices.

The musical numbers include "Moonlight," sung with wonderful melody by H. H. Ferner, "April Showers," by Hank Halverson, "Out of Shadows," by Frank Gale, "The Sunrise and You," by George Humphreys and others.

There may be some arguments about the knockout among the comedy songs introduced here. There's Jim Blunt, whose "Angel Child" is a fitting companion to his "Get Young and Treat 'Em Rough" song of last year; Jim Taylor in "Ain't Nature Grand" and Bob Simpson "O, Brother, What a Feelin'," the said feelin' probably being the way a Memphis dandy felt on the high seas when going to France back in 1913.

Better than last year, is the early verdict in the minstrel frolic, which is presented Friday and Saturday nights at the Auditorium. The music includes a wonderful bunch of songs. One of them, a new fox trot, has just been introduced in the east, Mr. Draper being given permission to use it only west of Chicago in his productions.

This is just a sample of the show—you've got to be there to get it all.

overflow in that country, we can, by a system of dams in this western country, make it as productive as any country in the United States. Our soil is unsurpassed in fertility and all we need is moisture in June and July.

Possibilities of Reclamation
If there is a possibility to reclaim this entire territory in place of limiting it to a small area along and adjacent to the Missouri river no idea should be overlooked to accomplish that result. Thousands and thousands of dollars have been made available to the farmers through county seed grain loans and indirectly the War Finance corporation has placed enormous sums with the farmers in the past year. If one year's outlay of this money could be used in experimenting on dams sufficient to try it out it would be no more speculative than financing for seed grain which often proves a failure.

It is not so much cash this country needs, but moisture, and the annual outlay of funds by counties, state and government might be enough to supply all necessary moisture through the artificial dams and lakes as proposed, if put to that use. In addition to reclaiming this country and making it an ideal and prosperous place in which to live it would help solve other problems which congress has been contending with for years. By holding the surplus water in this country for future use it would prevent freshets and floods on the lower Mississippi, the overflowing of thousands of acres of the finest land along the river, and the destruction of annual crops and property there which occurs annually. The cash expended to protect the lands there if put into dams in this country would serve the double purpose of giving this country sufficient moisture and at the same time protecting life and property on the lower Mississippi. Every property owner in the Slope district is vitally interested in the expenditure or any proposed expenditure of the $34,000,000 available and if the proposition of dams has any merit, and I think it has, I trust it will have due consideration at the Bismarck meeting of the Irrigation congress to be held there June 7-8.

McCUMBER ASKS INVESTIGATION ON IRRIGATION
view of the lack of interest at that time in irrigation in that part of the country, investigations were suspended and the funds of the Reclamation Service were utilized in the construction of other projects.

Must Get New Funds
Mr. Davis states that the funds at his disposal at this time are not sufficient to include any new investigations; in fact it has all been allotted. He says the general plan that is being followed in many cases is for parties interested to organize an irrigation district under the state laws and contract with the Reclamation Service to furnish a large part of the funds for carrying on these investigations.

In view of the prevailing conditions Senator McCumber is working out the most feasible method for providing funds for necessary investigations as he realizes that the farmers in the drought stricken area should be aided in reinstating themselves financially, with the least possible delay. He has studied prevailing conditions fully so that he may be able to proceed in the most practical way to bring relief.

SOLDIER BONUS TO HOLD OFF PENSION LIST

Chairman McCumber Cites This in Preparing Report on the Measure

Washington, June 1.—The finance committee report on the amendment of the house soldiers bonus bill still was in the making today but Chairman McCumber hoped to report it and the bill to the senate before the end of the week, then the measure will take its place on the calendar to be called up after agreement has been reached among senators for its consideration.

Chairman McCumber is expected to emphasize these points in presenting the bill:

That the loan feature enabling veterans to obtain loans immediately had been retained.

That a veteran could make application for compensation without limit as to time.

That a veteran defaulting in repayment of a loan to the government could recover his certificate at any time before its maturities.

That all changes made in the house bill were agreeable to representatives of the veteran organization.

That the proposed legislation would postpone pensions for the veterans for a number of years.

The report is expected to contain a complete estimate of the cost of the bonus, figured now at between $4,000,000,000 and $5,000,000,000.

LIBERTY BONDS SELL AT PAR

All Bonds Reach This Figure For First Time

New York, June 1.—For the first time since the date of issue, all Liberty bonds sold today at par, or better. Heavy trading in Liberty bonds at highest prices and transactions embracing several lots of $1,000,000 were the outstanding features of the bond market.

Continued ease of money and investment buying of individuals and corporations in anticipation of June interest and dividend disbursements gave stimulus to the day's extensive purchases of these war flotations.

Maximum and minimum quotations of these bonds so far this year afford interesting comparison. The high of $100.06 for the 3 1-2's compares with a low of $98.33; the first 4's of 1922-27 sold as low as $98.10 and as high as $100.10; the second 4's of 1927-42 ranged from $95.50 to 100; the third 4 1-4's of 1928 from $96.32 to $100.01 and the common fourth 4 1-4's in which dealings have been very large, rose from $95.72 to $100.04.

At the low quotations of last year, most of these bonds were yielding from five to almost 6 1-2 percent. On the present basis of values, the 3 1-2's net exactly 3 1-2 percent and the 4's and the 4 1-4's from 4 to 4 1-4 percent. In fine, predictions of treasury officials made early in the year that all of Uncle Sam's war flotations soon would reach par or better, have been fulfilled.

SETTLEMENT OF MEXICO'S BIG FINANCIAL PROBLEMS TAKEN UP BY INTERNATIONAL BANKERS IN N. Y.

Return of Thomas W. Lamont From Europe Prepares Way For Conference
OPPOSITION TO PLANS
Efforts of International Bankers To Bring Settlement Were Once Defeated

New York, June 1.—(By the Associated Press).—Settlement of Mexico's financial problems, which has been held in abeyance since 1914 when that country ceased the payment of interest on most of its internal and external loans, is expected to result from the conference to be held here between Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican Secretary of the Treasury and a delegation of the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico headed by Thomas W. Lamont, who arrived from Europe today.

While exact statistics are not obtainable, Mexico's national debt is approximately $700,000,000 not including claims for property damages against the government and depreciation of nationalized railroad property.

The direct external debt as compiled by the international committee, amounts to $239,137,818.10; the direct internal debt to $30,998,298.12; bonds guaranteed by the Mexican government (exclusive of railway guarantees) to $42,000,531.88 and the bonds of the National Railways of Mexico to $320,141,178.30, making a total of $693,266,826.41. These figures include interest approximated to December 1, 1921.

Values Jump
Transactions in Mexican government securities have been very active since the debt refunding negotiations were resumed. In the first five months of this year Mexican government 5's ranged from 54 to 70 1-2 and the 4's from 39 3-4 to 62.

In the week ending April 8, when it was announced that Senor de la Huerta was coming to New York, the price of the 5's jumped 4 points to 65, total transactions for that week being $654,000. At the same time the 4's rose from 54 to 62 with total sales of $1,020,000.

In 1914 when interest payments were stopped Mexican government 5's sold as low as 74 in April and as high as 85 in June while the 4's varied only a few points, the high mark being 63. In 1920 the 5's dropped to 29 3-4 in March and rose to 50 in November, total transactions for the year being $7,540,000. The 4's in 1920 went down to 26 in May and up to 39 1-4 in November, total sales being $1,553,000.

In 1921 the 5's were quoted at 40 in January and 50 1-4 in September, total sales being $14,061,000. Last year the 4's were down to 28 in January and up to 48 3-4 in September, total sales being $4,617,000.

Local bankers estimate that well over half of these Mexican government bonds and notes are held in Europe where most of the public offering took place. The war made it almost impossible to keep a record of transactions in these securities, but a large percentage of them were held originally in Germany. It is known, however, that large blocks of these German-held securities were sold in the London, Paris and New York markets in the few weeks preceding the outbreak of the war.

It is reported also that Allied and neutral investors obtained possession of others during the war despite the fact that trading with the enemy was forbidden in all Allied countries. Representatives of German interests here frankly stated that it was impossible to estimate the present Mexican holdings of German investors.

Fails to Meet Obligations
Failure of the Mexican government to meet its obligations followed soon after the assassination of President Francisco Madero in 1913. When General Victoriano Huerta became President, the United States did not recognize his government and no payments of interest on outstanding obligations were made outside of Mexico during his regime. He was succeeded in the Presidency by Venustiano Carranza.

During Carranza's administration, the International Committee of Bankers on Mexico was formed. It was organized in New York February 24, 1919, and consisted of ten American, five French and five British bankers, with J. P. Morgan as chairman and Thomas W. Lamont of the Morgan firm as his alternate. Since then one American member, Edward F. Swinney, of Kansas City, Mo., resigned and two others, James Speyer and E. G. Hutchinson, Jr., were added, consolidating the American interest in the protection of holders of Mexican securities.

Two names also were added to the British group, including that of C. E. ter Meulen, Amsterdam banker, which gives representation to the Dutch interests. To the French group were added, G. Pictet, Geneva banker and Auguste Dupont, Antwerp banker, giving representation to the Swiss and Belgian interests, respectively.

Shortly after this international committee was organized, President Carranza sent Rafael Nieto, acting Minister of Finance, to New York in an effort to work out a plan of settlement. Several general conversations were held on the subject, but nothing came out of them. In the fall of that year another unsuccessful attempt to come to an agreement was made when General Salvador Alvarado came to New York.

can government and the international committee had failed to come to a substantial agreement but Adolfo de la Huerta, Mexican Minister of Finance, was more hopeful.

While no official statements were given out as to the nature of the discussions it was reported from generally authentic sources, and never denied that one of the features of the agreement proposed by the Mexicans was that American oil men should purchase these Mexican government securities in the open market and use them to pay their export taxes to the Mexican government, the understanding being that the securities would be accepted by the Mexican government at their par value.

International bankers looked with disfavor upon this proposal, which they considered would have meant countenancing the Mexican government in the disregard of its pledge to devote the proceeds of its exports and taxes to the payment of sinking funds on certain of its exterior obligations. They also pointed out that it would encourage the government, by withholding current income, to depress the price of its outstanding securities so as to buy them in at lower prices for itself, using for this purpose the revenues specifically intended for its payment of interest on its foreign bonds.

Efforts Resumed.
Acceptance of the plan by the international bankers also would have placed them in the position, they contended, of going to the persons to whom they sold the bonds at or near par and of inducing them to part with their bonds at depreciated prices.

While negotiations for a settlement were temporarily halted by Mr. Lamont's return, they were not abandoned. Informal communications passed back and forth between Mr. Lamont and Mexican officials. Early in April of this year it was announced that Senor de la Huerta would come to New York late in May to discuss readjustment of the Mexican debt with Mr. Lamont and a delegation of the international committee. Soon afterward Mr. Lamont sailed for Europe for preliminary discussions with his British and French associates, prior to the conference with Senor de la Huerta in this city.

RECOGNITION FOR BRAVERY SOUGHT FOR

San Francisco, Calif., June 1.—Lieutenant Colonel Andrew S. Rowan, retired, the man who carried the famous "message to Garcia" in 1898, during the Spanish-American war, will receive a belated recognition for bravery, if Senator Samuel F. Shortridge of California can bring it about. The Senator has received assurances from Secretary of War Weeks that he will take up with the army board having jurisdiction the granting of a medal or of a distinguished service cross.

Lieutenant General Nelson A. Miles ordered young Lieutenant Rowan to deliver a "message to Garcia." Discretion, initiative and bravery were required. Rowan did not ask who Garcia was, where he could be found, or how to get there. Instead, he delivered the message to General Garcia, in the interior of Cuba, where Garcia was almost surrounded by Spanish forces. Rowan knew that if the message were intercepted by the Spaniards he would be shot or hanged as a spy.

Garcia, heartened by the promise of aid from the United States, just entering the war, with Spain, fought on, and the foe was overcome. Lieutenant Rowan was cited by General Miles in dispatches to Washington as follows: "This was a most perilous undertaking, and in my judgment Lieutenant Rowan performed an act of heroism and cool daring that has rarely been excelled in the annals of warfare."

Rowan later was appointed lieutenant colonel of volunteers, and in 1908 was retired from the regular army with the rank of major. He resides in San Francisco.

JACKIE COOGAN. A COMEDIAN? NO, A GREAT TRAGEDIAN

Jackie Coogan, youthful master of the mimetic art, and some of his various poses.

By James W. Dean
New York, June 1.—A widely spread notion is that Jack Coogan is a great comedian. Some have said that he is second only to Charlie Chaplin who first gave him prominence in "The Kid."

After sitting through two showings of "Trouble," Jackie's latest, I am convinced that he is a tragedian equal to or better than the great Chaplin. But Jackie Coogan is a child, a serious little one who probes into the dim past of grown-ups and presents the retrospect of childhood's seriousness. Therein lies the tragic quality of his acting.

A little boy trying to be funny is not comedy, but there is an ineffable poignancy in the sight of a tattered little scrawny trying to shoulder the troubles of the universe. It is thus that you find Jackie in "Trouble."

A dog and an "adopted" mother are the two things that are dear to the little tatterdemalion in "Trouble." The entire play pivots upon his affection for these two. Only a man who as a boy thought of his mother as having a little too much of this world's troubles and of his dog as a creature of understanding and human impulse can appreciate the pathos of this picture, mistakenly called a comedy.

The story in brief of "Trouble" runs as follows:

A cop finds Jackie and his dog, "Queenie," asleep in an alley and takes them back to the orphanage where Jackie belonged and the dog didn't. On "bargain day" only Jackie and a little negro are left. Jackie paints the negro white, only to find that a colored man and woman have come to adopt one of their race. Jackie hurriedly washes off the white paint and then he alone is left unclaimed.

A plumber's wife adopts Jackie. Her husband beats and mistreats her and will not work. When he refuses to answer a call Jackie goes in his stead. By many ingenious and ludicrous devices the boy gets the tools to flood the house, but only succeeds in flooding the place. The mistress pities him and gives him $5.

When he gives the money to his mother, his father takes it away. A policeman comes and after a strenuous fight the plumber is subdued only after Jackie crows him with a flower pot.

The judge sends the father to jail and the mother's parents take her home, but not until Jackie finds "Queenie." If ever a dog acted with human intelligence before the camera it is this mongrel.

No film has caught the tender pathos of childhood as has "Trouble." It is an epic of human interest and in that respect takes its place alongside "The Jack Knife Man," "The Kid," "The row the castle and drawbridge set Doug is using for "Robin Hood." Doug asked him what he'd do with it. Chaplin answered: "I'd get into my derby and shoes, have the drawbridge let down, walk out, throw the cat into the front yard, pick up the milk bottle and morning paper, walk back into the castle and have them pull up the drawbridge."

"Affinities," by Mary Roberts Rinehart, is being photodramatized by Ward Lascelle with Coleen Moore playing the lead.

Doris Pawn plays opposite Richard Talmadge in "Lucky Thirteen."

A sandstorm allowed Tod Browning to shoot in half a day scenes necessary for "Under Two Flags" which he thought would require months with the aid of wind machines. The sandstorm buried the wind machines.

PASTORS MAY ATTEND SUMMER SCHOOL IN MINN.

St. Paul, Minn., June 1.—Selected town and country pastors, from the states of Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, northern Iowa and Minnesota, will attend a summer school of methods at Hamline University here, June 12 to July 1, under the auspices of the board of home missions of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Prof. Albert T. Mann of Hamline university, will be dean of the school and Prof. F. Watson Hannan, of New Theological Seminary, Madison, N. J., will head the faculty list.

It is proposed to devise new methods for country churches so as to make a bigger factor in the social and recreational life of a community, according to Prof. Mann. Two important phases of the school work will center on dramatic education and the community institute, Mr. Mann said.

Judge and Mrs. W. L. Nuesale and Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Taylor gave a dinner party at the home of Mrs. Nuesale, 710 Second St., yesterday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Martin who are leaving in the near future for their home at Nebraska City, Neb. Among the guests were Gov. R. A. Nestos, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Orr, Judge and Mrs. Birdsell, Judge and Mrs. A. M. Christensen, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Young, George Will, Mrs. N. W. Kelly, Mrs. Southey of Garrison, Misses Margaret Welch and Elizabeth Jones. The evening was spent in playing bridge. Mr. Martin, who has been superintendent of public instruction in the city for several years, will be greatly missed not only by the high school students with whom he has always been a great favorite, but by all the citizens of Bismarck. ### Picnic Breakfast For Senior Class

The annual high school spread for members of the senior class was enjoyed this morning at a 6 o'clock picnic breakfast at Burnt Creek, near Ward's Grove. In addition to about 70 students were the teachers who were invited guests. Bacon and eggs, with Parker house rolls, and doughnuts and coffee satisfied the appetites of the hungry picnickers. The crowd thoroughly enjoyed their early morning affair.

D. A. R.'s Present Medals at School

A gold medal and a silver medal were presented to Misses Mary Hassel and Lucile Prater respectively, by the Minnehosha chapter of the D. A. Grady and Mrs. A. M. Christensen.

It is an annual custom of the D. A. R.'s to offer a gold and silver medal to members of the junior high school for the best work in history.

Miss Hassel had an average of 92.12 for her work in history during the school year. Miss Prater's average was 91. Honorable mentions were made of three students, Edna Jensen, whose average was 90.12; Jean MacLeod, average 90; Marion Folsom, average 90.

Pupils To Appear In Last Recital

The fourth and last recital for 1922, given by Mrs. Wheeler's pupils will be held at the High School Auditorium Friday, June 2 at 7:45. No admission fee is charged, but an offering is accepted.

The class helped two national organizations—the Red Cross and the MacDowell League—which help to educate poor but talented working artists, authors, and musicians. They assisted in the raising of funds to send our high school students to the musical contests at Grand Forks. They wish to help the state federation of music clubs to raise a loan endowment fund which will be used to educate poor but worthy musicians from North Dakota.

All who are interested are cordially invited to attend.

Quality First

Much has been said and written about pre-war prices, but in this price scramble, pre-war qualities have apparently been overlooked or forgotten. While I have reduced prices as fast as honest merchandising and market conditions would justify, I have also been making every effort to get back to pre-war qualities which I consider fully as important as pre-war prices. Honest quality will give comfort and satisfaction to the wearer, during the life of the garment, while prices are naturally more or less forgotten.

Naturally, I have a particular interest in quality because everything I sell must be right or I make it right.

My stock is now unusually complete and well assorted. I have suits ranging in price from $10.00 to $50.00, including stouts and young men's in the form fitting and flaring skirt effects. Suits priced at $17.50 to $27.50 are especially good values.

Always pleased to see you or hear from you and all questions cheerfully answered.

An attractive assortment of bathing suits just received, priced at $1.00 to $3.00.

THE RADIO MYSTERY

Have you been able to figure out why people will sit all evening and far into the night, listening over the wireless to music that would not interest them if they heard exactly the same thing on a phonograph?

Start playing a child's phonograph. Most people feel like stuffing their ears with cotton or walking out of the room.

But let that same music travel a few hundred miles through the air—and people will thrill with delight when they hear it.

There never was a stronger proof that the quickest way to succeed is to do "the old stuff" in a new way.

What the radio fans really are interested in, is the mysterious wireless itself, rather than what they hear by Hertzian waves.

The wireless has a basic and universal appeal because it is closely allied with the supernatural, even the uncanny.

The history of wireless began 70 or 80 years ago with the experiments in electro-magnetic induction by Faraday, Englishman, by trade a book-binder.

Heinrich Hertz, German professor, came along later and in 1886 made amazing discoveries about an electric spark bridging a gap or break in a wire.

Scientific minds immediately began working on the problem of making the electric wave jump thousands of miles instead of an inch or so.

People discussed the sanity of Sir William Crookes when, in 1892, he predicted the coming of actual communication by wireless.

In 1901 Marconi, brilliant young Italian, sent the first wireless message across the Atlantic—the letter "S," in code.

Many readers will recall the wireless telegraph craze that followed among boys—also their antiquated equipment, including the coherer and de-coherer, which few youthful radio fans of 1922 ever heard of. Radio equipment now in use will be just as obsolete, 21 years hence.

Today nearly every lad knows the wireless secrets that Faraday groped for, 70 or 80 years ago. But radio itself is just as mysterious and uncanny as it was in Faraday's time.

The more we learn about nature's mysteries, the less we know. Education is merely the process of extending our horizon—increasing our conception of the infinite mysteries that surround us.

The system is one of mysteries within mysteries—like the Japanese boxes within boxes.

FLYING

A Leoning monoplane air yacht flies 1210 miles, from Palm Beach to New York, carrying pilot, mechanic and 1600 pounds of cargo.

The trip cost less than $75, including fuel and depreciation on the plane. For similar accommodations, the trip by railroad would have cost at least twice as much.

Flying will be the cheapest form of transportation, within our life-times.

WONDERS

Edmund Candler, British globe-trotter, returns from India, excited about the new capital being built at Delhi.

"No works on the same scale," he writes, "have been undertaken since the days of Pharaoh or Nebuchadnezzar."

That sort of bunk gets wearisome. The Woolworth building or the Panama Canal easily is 10 times as wonderful as all the useless Egyptian pyramids combined.

As one of the wonders of the world, the useless Sphinx is a joke alongside a flivver or a toy radio set.

WEISENHEIMERS

Paris is amazed at a hotel porter who steps forth as an authority on the Einstein theory. It develops that he is highly educated, trained for one of the intellectual professions. He says he prefers being a porter, because it pays more money.

The machine shops of America probably have more men who understand Einstein than so-called highbrow circles. Some of the best and most philosophical brains in our country are running lathes. Astronomy and other sciences get more discussion over the dinner-pail than over the noon-day-lunch table of the expensive hotels.

The plain people do a lot more thinking than their leaders give them credit for. That is the chief reason the bulk of our great men and women are produced from poverty and obscurity.

CHINESE

Chinese aviators in three bombing planes dropped explosives on enemy warships near Canton. One ship was wrecked by a direct hit. The other ships immediately struck their colors—surrendered.

Major General Patrick, head of our army air service, says this is "the first actual demonstration of the utility of aerial attack in actual warfare. It is significant and prophetic of what undoubtedly will occur in greater wars of the future."

SLUMP

The general business slump, which began in Germany during April, continues. Money is tightening there, banks charging 10 per cent for long-time loans.

That is the cable report to our Department of Commerce from Commercial Attache Herring, stationed at Berlin.

It is important news, more vital than most of the political happenings on the other side of the Atlantic. For the whole future of Europe, for at least the next five years, depends on keeping the Germans at work. Idle nations, like idle men, cannot pay their bills.

PENNIES

Gasoline isn't the only thing that is moving up in price. Steel in the last 60 days has risen an average of about $3 a ton. Common brick advances, New York paying as high as $20 a thousand for what recently cost $16.50. Coffee in many cities rises 2 and 3 cents a pound.

Signs point to a secondary period of inflation. But it will be a short one, if the precedent of past deflationary periods repeats.

A penny is added here, a penny there. The humble penny is what keeps most of us poor and makes a very few rich.

SPOILED

Magistrate Alexander Brough starts finding New York food dealers $1 for each pound of food, unfit to eat, found in their possession.

Expansion of this policy to national dimensions might be a good way to pay off the war debt speedily.

Maybe it's for the best that we don't know the history of everything we eat in civilization. If we did, voluntary starvation might become epidemic.

Civilization is the cleanest and the filthiest thing on this little planet of ours.

EDITORIAL REVIEW

Comments reproduced in this column may or may not express the opinion of The Tribune. They are presented here in order that our readers may have both sides of important issues which are being discussed in the press of the day.

WORLD BANKING

The Genoa economic conference failed because Russian politics obscured economics. It is now strangely said that "changed conditions" are unpropitious for the meeting of the central bankers which was to follow the Genoa conference. The conditions have changed only by not changing. America may yet raise a standard of non-political banking to which all will rally who agree with us. The need is great. An American banker cabled to the United States Chamber of Commerce that most of the world's central banks "present varying degrees of insolvency." That is so because of the close connection between Governments and even the best of the banks. So long as commercial banking is subordinated to fiscal banking the world's financial sickness will continue. The bad state of Government finance is the source of the threatened instability of banks. We cannot depart from our banking principles any more than we could palter with Bolshevism. We must pursue the path from which other world bankers have wandered, both for self-protection and for maintaining our ability to serve our foreign friends. We cannot co-operate with banks that are under the necessity of financing Government deficits with currency issues. We see our duty to use our excess gold in a world interest, but it is a higher duty not to waste it.

We are in the fourth year of peace, but neither Governments nor banks in Europe have altered their war methods. War expenses are still a chief cause of unbalanced budgets. One or two Governments have started on the path which their bankers as well as ours know they must follow. Space would fail to recite the delusions in banking which have been current. Politicians must pander to economic illiteracy, but no free banker will do so. Politicians are responsible for the doubling of the world's national debts since the war, and for the tripling of currency issues in the same period. If the world bankers' conference were to condone these financial misdeeds it would be a worse failure than the Genoa conference.

There have been four economic conferences. All were agreed, but their conclusions have not been put in practice. Our foreign friends must make up their minds that we can no more change our position on banking than on Russia. We sympathize with their troubles, we understand their difficulties, but we cannot adopt their ways. Overseas Governments must practice what overseas bankers and economists advise before we can co-operate with them as we desire.—New York Times.

THIS MAKES THE JOURNEY SHORTER

ADVENTURE OF THE TWINS

By Olive Barton Roberts

Nancy and Nick floated down from the sky like two little shadows.

By "n" by they came to Tommy Brown's house and lighted softly on the roof like two little birds. Their magical Green Shoes managed the whole affair.

What they saw was really shocking.

There was nice, kind, little Wink, the dream-fairy, fighting with Comet-Legs. Or rather Comet-Legs was fighting him, and so of course Wink had to double up his fists, too.

Wink had brought a kind dream for Tommy Brown from the moon.

Comet-Legs had brought an un-kind dream for Tommy from a star where a magician made awful ones.

Wink's dream lay on the roof all done up in a neat, poppy-deaf bag. Beside it lay Comet-Leg's bad dream, all done up in a horrid toad-skin.

Nick had a plan. He had some magical powder. Mr. Peppercorn, the Man-in-the-Moon, had given him.

He intended to shake a little on Comet-Leg's bow legs. That would have made his legs straight, and if his legs were straight he couldn't ride his shooting-star any more and he'd have to stay at home.

But Comet-Legs saw them, magic shaker "n" all.

With a yell he picked up his toad-skin, hopped off the roof to the hill-top and straddled his star. Away he went.

It's pronounced—mandate, with accent on the first syllable.

It means—an authoritative command; has been used recently to designate an authorization by the League

WHAT I SHOULD DO IF I WERE ABOUT TO ENTER THE BOOK BUSINESS

BY FREDERIC G. MELCHER.
Secretary of the National Association of Book Publishers.

An alert mind, a keen interest in all knowledge and a contagious enthusiasm will help to make bookselling a fine career for a young man or woman.

A good high school education is a necessity; a general college course, an advantage; the background of a home life where books enter naturally into the discussions and conversations of all is the best of assets.

No profession could be more interesting. All that the past has to say to the present and all that the present has to say or record for itself passes through the hands of the booksellers and is guided to the right hands.

The scope of the information that the bookseller can put to good use is tremendous. No one can completely meet the needs. Some day there will be a college course on bookselling, a combination of courses on books and on business. Today the best way to learn the practical problems of selling books is to work in the best bookstore that has an opening.

Absorb there the lore of books, buying methods, publishers' names and characteristics, display and promotion methods, office details and all that is of Nations to some Power to direct affairs in a country or district considered incompetent to govern itself.

It comes from—Latin "mandare," to commit to one's charge; being a combination of the two Latin words "manus," hand, and "dare," to give.

It's used like this—"The French Convention sentenced Charles R. Crane, an American, to prison for criticizing the way they are exercising their mandate in Syria, but it is evident they are annoyed."

there to see or to understand and—read all the time.

Reading now ought to fill in all the gaps left by earlier book rambles. Read new books, of course, but between 15 years of age and 25 the book-seller should have swung through hundreds of established books from all ages and countries and in all branches of writing. The background for information and judgment must be laid early.

Study all phases of current book output, read trade papers and foreign reviewing mediums. Study a foreign language or keep up the one you have. Don't forget, that fiction and other creative literature are not the only important uses of print. The book seller must distribute understandingly books on science, technology, agriculture, religion, economics, cookery and what not.

There is no trick way to sell books. Know books, convey your enthusiasms, serve unwearyingly.

Save money in order to be part of the established firm or owner of a new enterprise. No retail field offers today better chances for expansion. New bookshops are needed, many cities are unprovided with intelligent book service. The bookseller of tomorrow will be accepted as one of the upbuilding forces in the community. As such he will find a competence for his family and food for his spirit.

A THOUGHT

If you seek Him, He will be found of thee; but if thou forsookest Him, He will cast thee off forever.—I Chronicles 28:9.

As the marsh hen builds on the watery sod, Behold, I will build me a nest on the greatness of God.

I will fly in the greatness of God as the marsh-hen flies. In the freedom that fills all the space 'twixt the marsh and the skies;

By so many roots as the marsh grass sends in the sod, I will heartily lay me a hold on the greatness of God.

—Sidney Lanier.

I have come to the land of my life-long quest, To the land of my heart's desires, To the land by the millions of earth called best.

Far greater than world empires, For no monarch rules in this land of the West, Nor castled walls nor spires Strike awe in the heart of the humblest breast.

In this land of my heart's desires, To this land of my dreams, of my heart's desire,

To this land with its sky so blue, I do pledge my all—with my heart on fire, And I swear allegiance true To the greatest of all the lands on earth.

Texas Youngsters Full of Promise

Danny Looks Like Next in Line To Keep Up Detroit's Reputation as Hard Hitting Team

BY BILLY EVANS.

For years the Detroit club has boasted of its sluggers.

The Tigers' lineup always has included one or more players who have stood out prominently because of their ability to hit.

Back in the old days there was Sam Thompson. How that baby could swing them! Sam is alive and well still. Each year he takes a leading part in the opening-day ceremonies at Detroit.

When the American League came into existence Detroit was one of the cities of the Johnsonian circuit. That was more than a score of years ago.

In the Detroit lineup was Crawford, known to baseball fans the country over as "Wahoo Sam." That title was conferred upon him because he hailed from the hamlet of Wahoo, Neb.

Fine Form at Bat.

No player in the history of baseball had more form at bat than Crawford.

His stance was perfect, his cut at the ball the poetry of motion. Crawford was one of those hitters who looked good even when he was striking out. Crawford was a natural swinger. He took a healthy cut at the ball. When he connected the sphere certainly traveled. I venture to say that Crawford, had he played in these days of the lively ball, would be pushing Babe Ruth mightily hard for the home-run honors.

As Crawford began to slow up as the premier slogger of the Detroit club Claude Rossman sprang into prominence.

Many of the veteran American League twirlers, who have now passed out of the picture, will tell you that Rossman was one of the greatest hitters they ever pitched to. Rossman hit 'em on a line.

Inability to throw, however, caused his departure from the major leagues when he was at the top of his game as a batter.

Advent of Veach.

When Rossman went to the minors following in the wake of Crawford, there came to the Tigers from the bushers another great natural batsman, Bobby Veach.

The Tiger outfielder is one of the few batsmen of the slugging type still in the game. Regardless whether the pitch is a fast one, a curve, or a fade-away, Veach takes the same healthy cut, the same follow through on every swing.

While Veach is at the top of his game right now, and probably has a number of good years ahead, he is a veteran and there must come a time when he will begin to fall off in his batting.

There is on the Detroit club a youngster who has yet to win his spurs as a regular, ready to take the place of Veach as the Tigers' premier slugger, when Bob is ready and willing to give up that honor.

I have reference to Danny Clarke, late of Wichita Falls, Tex.

Clarke is being groomed for second base. He is being used as an understudy to the veteran, George Cutshaw. He has demonstrated already that he can hit. He is well above the .300 mark. In a pinch already he has broken up a number of ball games.

Tied Up the Game.

The other day in a game at Philadelphia, with the score standing 5 to 2 in favor of the Athletics, Manager Cobb sent Clarke to bat in a pinch, with two on. All Clarke did was to hit the first ball pitched over the right field wall for a home run, tying up the game.

Clarke is a natural batsman. He takes a free swing. The making of home runs is nothing new to him. He was the Babe Ruth of the Texas League last season. He made 50 two-base hits, 10 three-baggers and 19 home runs.

Clarke bids fair to take a place in the hearts of the Detroit fans as a slugger extraordinary.

HOME-RUN BUG GETTING IN ON COLLEGE BALL

Most Varsity Teams Boast a Babe Ruth or Ken Among Players Now

The home-run epidemic in baseball is not confined entirely to the major leagues.

It seems that the germ has also invaded college circles. Nearly every varsity team has one or more Babe Ruths in its lineup.

Recently on the same day a number of prominent college games were decided through the home-run medium.

Six Home Runs

Lafayette, by a four run rally in the ninth inning, beat Pennsylvania 9 to 3, a home run with two men on deciding the game. In this game six home runs were made, being equally divided between the two teams.

Two home runs by Captain Aldrich, the Yale all-around star, enabled his Blue to defeat Penn State. In the first inning, with the bases filled, Aldrich hit a homer. In the second he repeated with two on. He was successful for seven runs. Yale won 8 to 3.

Ready for Majors.

At one time college ball players were not given much consideration, because they were regarded as weak hitters. It would seem from perusing the summary of the big games that those days are over.

The collegians are emulating the example of Ruth and taking a healthy cut at the ball.

Captain Aldrich, by the way, is one college ball player that sixteen major league clubs would welcome. Aldrich plays shortstop and is said to be ready for the majors right now.

MURPHY DIDN'T LEAD EVERY LAP

Indianapolis, June 1.—Motor speedway officials discovered that Jimmy Murphy, winner in the 500 mile race, did not lead every lap as had been officially announced. A faulty device confused officials during the race and after the last man had crossed the tape it was discovered. Harry Katz of Los Angeles, who finished second, had led all laps between the 74th and 122nd except four which went to Peter de Paulo in the 84th, 85th and 86th to Leon Durray in the 75th.

This divides the lap prize money among four. Murphy got $6,100 in addition to $20,000 for first place and a number of trophies and accessory prizes worth thousands of dollars.

LEWIS TO MEET JACK SAMPSON

Ed. "Strangler" Lewis, champion heavyweight wrestler, has signed a contract to meet Jack Sampson, of Wahpeton, in a match June 12 for the championship with the headlock barred, it was announced today. Sampson previously lost to the champion.

GIBBONS BOUT IS POSTPONED

Mike Gibbons, of St. Paul, who was slated to meet Jack McCarthy, of Toledo, in a ten-round bout in Mandan June 8, was operated upon yesterday at St. Paul for removal of tonsils and adenoids and the bout has been postponed for a week. McCarthy will arrive next week, and train in Mandan.

JUST A LITTLE DISAGREEMENT AS TO SALARY

However, Mack and Ed Rommel Seem to Hit It Off All Right Now

Baseball abounds in unusual situations on and off the ball field. The case of Pitcher Ed Rommel of the Athletics bears this statement out.

Last winter Rommel and Connie Mack disagreed over salary. Rommel was of the opinion that he was worth much more than Mack offered. "I am through pitching major league ball for a minor league salary," is the way Rommel put it. "I will never play ball for Mack again."

Said "Twice a Secret"

Connie Mack, who is always there with the retort courteous, came back with this one:

"If Rommel has been pitching major league ball since he joined the Athletics, he has kept the matter a secret."

Then to end the argument Mack advised Rommel to take his salary grievance to Commissioner Landis. The judge politely refused to listen, saying that it was no affair of his.

Rommel finally decided to join the Mackmen. What salary he received no one knows.

Pitched Fine Ball

However, there is no denying the fact that Rommel has pitched major league ball since the opening of the season.

Rommel won six of his first seven starts and bids fair to have a big season.

"Rommel has been pitching the ball of which he is capable," says Connie, "he should win many a game for me."

All of which is very much different from the winter dialogue.

Billy Evans Says

During my 17 years in the major leagues I have seen a number of unusual plays.

It has been my good fortune to witness triple and double plays unassisted. Likewise I have seen double plays made in many freak ways.

I once saw Derrill Pratt of the New York club literally drop kick a double play. He overran the ball slightly, and before he could get his hands down, his right foot had come into contact with the ball.

Derrill Pratt was with New York at the time. Roger Peckinpaugh, playing short for the Yankees, ran over to second to take the throw, as a man was on first at the time and the hit and run was on.

Instead of throwing the ball, however, Pratt kicked it for a perfect field goal into the waiting hands of Peckinpaugh as he stood on second, thereby forcing the runner at that base. A fast snappy throw to first retired the batsman.

It was a freak double play if there ever was one. I will never forget it.

However, in a game at Philadelphia recently, I saw a perfectly executed double play in which the pitcher did most of the execution. In all my career I have never seen its like. A description of the play will show its unusual features.

Detroit was the opposing team. La Blue, the fleet first sacker of the Tigers, had reached the initial sack. Cobb was at the bat. He flashed the hit and run sign, and Blue was off with the pitch.

Cobb lashed a scizzling grounder between second and first, which Doc Johnston, playing first for the Athletics, barely grazed. It slowed the ball up a trifle, however, and deflected it in the direction of Pop Young at second. Now for the big thrill of the play:

Moore, from his pitching position, dashed over to cover first base. When Johnston merely grazed the ball no play seemed possible, but Moore continued on his way to first.

Young recovered the ball in short right field, and by a great throw to Moore, who covered first, nipped the fleet Cobb by inches.

In the meantime Blue was dashing madly for third. Most pitchers would have been content to get Cobb and forget about Blue, but not Moore.

Pivoting on the bag, as he received the throw from Young, Moore wheeled in the direction of third and by a beautiful throw to Jimmy Dykes got Blue at that base by a scant margin.

It is the first time in my career that I have ever seen a pitcher act as the pivot man in a double play, that started at first and finished at third.

Another remarkable feature is that two fleet runners like Cobb and Blue should be the victims.

PACKING PLANT OFFICIALS ARE INDICTED BY U.S.

Three Identified with Midland Packing Company Indicted By Grand Jury

MUCH STOCK WAS SOLD

edfield, S. D., June 1.—Indictments charging three former officers of the defunct Midland Packing company of Sioux City, Iowa, with using the mails to defraud, were returned by a federal grand jury at the last term of court at Deadwood, S. D., according to an announcement yesterday by Wesley Clark, United States district attorney for South Dakota.

The officers indicted, Mr. Clark stated, are:

Frank Sawyer, former president of the company; Ben J. Sallinger, former vice-president; and C. H. Burlingame, former secretary-treasurer. There are fourteen counts to each indictment, he said.

The indictments, according to the district attorney, specifically charge issuance of certain stock of the company for property in Sioux City, greatly in excess of the real property value and the issuance of stock to dummy subscribers and then reselling at a profit.

While operations of the company were directed from Sioux City, letters upon which indictments are based were received by residents of South Dakota, it is alleged.

Depot's office at the United States marshal's office at Sioux Falls have gone to Los Angeles, where Sallinger and Burlingame are declared to be living, Mr. Clark said, and arrests are expected any time. If apprehended the men will be given an opportunity to furnish bond for appearance at the next term of court, according to the district attorney.

High finance, said to stand open the fictitious exploits of George Randolph Chester's famous character, J. Rufus Wallingford, have been charged by individuals at various times to the officers and promoters of the Midland Packing company of Sioux City. No charge, however, has ever been brought against them in the criminal courts and the final settlement of their venture still rests with the action of the receivers.

Company's Rise and Fall.

The rise and fall of the Midland Packing company has been described as "the greatest bubble in the history of the northwest." Stock was issued and subscribed for principally by farmers in South Dakota, Iowa, Nebraska, Minnesota and North Dakota, amounting to approximately $9,000,000. Dividends of $70,000 were paid by the company even before the plant was opened and after five months' operation, during which time the company lost $200,000. Its affairs were forced into receivers hands.

In South Dakota the company was licensed by the state securities commission to sell only $200,000 worth of its stock at a par value of $100, divided equally between common and preferred. It was later discovered that nearly $111,000 of the common variety and $1,000,000 of the seven per cent preferred had been sold to South Dakotans.

Gross irregularities in the manipulations and selling of the company's stock, and in the management of the plant after its completion were alleged to have been unearthed by the receivers.

Outstanding among these alleged abuses were the payment of commissions to stock salesmen to "sell" stock to the officers of the company and the re-sale agreement extended to purchasers, through which it has been declared, the officers apparently profited more than $500,000.

Personal Notes Given.

Personal notes of the purchasers for huge blocks of stock, often amounting to many thousands of dollars were accepted by salesmen, it is said, with the promise that they would be used only as collateral and never presented for payment. It has been further charged that these salesmen promised to return in a certain time and resell the stock thus purchased at a profit to the original purchaser. Little of the stock so disposed of was ever resold, according to the receiver's report. Many of the notes so given were put on the market by the company and finally returned to their makers for collection.

The operations of the company in South Dakota have been a bone of political contention for the last two years.

STATE BOARD AT JAMESTOWN TO INSPECT PLANT

Jamestown, N. D., June 1.—There was a meeting of the Board of Administration Tuesday at the State Hospital, Messrs. Talcott and Cahill being present. Work of replacing a number of old corridors that have become unsafe for use will be started soon. This is an improvement that has been contemplated for some time. The corridors to be rebuilt are those first constructed.

Preparations for finishing the new ward building were also put under way by the board and Supt. Guest was instructed to ascertain prices of materials required in the completion. The superstructure has been completed for a year but no use of the building has been had, because of its unfinished interior.

The usual garden acreage has been planted to vegetables.

An acre of land on the asylum farms will be seeded to sugar beets and cultivated and cared for under the direction of the state Commissioner of Agriculture and Labor Kitchen. It is expected to make a careful experiment in the culture of sugar beets with a purpose of extending the industry in this part of the state.

Work of drilling the new artesian well still continues and the drillers are down 1435 feet. Accidents to drill and tools have delayed the completion of this well.

Miners who work in arsenic mines have to take every precaution to prevent themselves becoming poisoned.

THE ELTINGE

Ethel Clayton is a particularly impressive way of portraying real life problems in a natural, human manner. This she does to perfection in her latest Paramount starring vehicle, "Her Own Money," which shows at the Eltinge today and Thursday, concerns a young wife with an extravagant husband. By the practice of the strictest economy, she saves two thousand dollars, intending to purchase a home of her own. But the husband becomes involved in a business deal and is in immediate need of two thousand dollars, or loses his investment. Seeing he is unable to borrow the money, the wife secretly arranges with a neighbor to lend her husband her own money, pretending it is from him. The deal falls through, the money is lost and in an ensuing situation the truth is brought to light. This strange husband from the wife, but there is a subsequent happy twist which makes for a happy finish.

CAPITOL

A strong dramatic story with a swiftly moving plot, a popular star, massive settings and much intense action are promised at the Capitol theater next Monday, when Elaine Hammerstein's latest Selznick picture, "Handcuffs or Kisses," opens an engagement.

The story, by Thomas Edgelow, tells of the trials, the suffering and the Almost hopeless fight of a young girl who is unjustly committed to a state reformatory for girls. As pictured in Mr. Edgelow's story, the treatment noted out to the inmates of such institutions is none too good and the hardships experienced by Miss Hammerstein, as Lois Walton, form the foundation upon which the star has built a dramatic achievement that will be remembered as among the best of her career.

The story first appeared in "Young's Magazine," and because of the timeliness of the subject matter, it scored a decided success. Just at that time he Bedford Reformatory was reeking with disorder and after a riot or two the state authorities began a sweeping investigation, which resulted in some startling disclosures. It is believed that Mr. Edgelow's story, "Handcuffs or Kisses," was inspired by the sensational development at Bedford, many of which would themselves provide splendid dramatic material for the screen.

SUCH PAINS AS THIS WOMAN HAD

Two Months Could Not Turn in Bed. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Finally Restored Health

Seattle, Washington.—"I had dragging pains first and could not stand on my feet, then I had chills and fever and such pains in my right side and a hard lump there. I could not turn myself in bed and could not sleep. I was this way for over two months, trying everything any one told me, until my sister brought me a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it regularly until all the hard pains had left me and I was able to be up and to do my work again. The hard lump left my side and I feel splendid in all ways. I know of many women it has helped."—Mrs. G. RICHARDSON, 4640 Orcas St., Seattle, Washington.

This is another case where Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound brought results after "trying everything any one told me" had failed.

If you are suffering from pain, nervousness and are always tired; if you are low spirited and good for nothing, take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. You may not only relieve the present distress, but prevent the development of more serious trouble.
